THE ALLELUIATIC SEQUENCE: Cantemus cuncti.—The strain upraise; with the ancient and only appropriate melody. Reprinted from the Hymnal Noted.

The Alleluatic Sequence was written, and the music composed, in the eleventh century; as some will have it, by Godeschalkus. Though now employed on the highest festivals, it was originally intended as "The Farewell to Alleluia" on Septuagesima Sunday. It is not very common in Missals and Sequentiaries.

It was first translated by me for the Hymnal Noted; where the music was, for the first time in England, published. The varying metre only represents that of the original. Most unhappily it has usually been sung to a chant composed (or rather, altered) by the late Mr. Troyte; a proceeding which utterly destroys all the picturesqueness of the original melody, and reduces to a monotonous level the exquisitely appropriate character of each recurring Alleluia.

This may partly be owing to the cost of the Harmonies of the Hymnal Noted, and the Sequence is now therefore reprinted by itself. Most earnestly I trust that, in future, and especially in those great choral meetings which now, happily, are becoming so common, this melody, and this only, will be used. When it has once been heard, it will be matter of wonder that the other was ever tolerated.

The objects gained in these instruments are cheapness, simplicity, and power, and they are especially adapted to Churches and Chapels. They have none of the ordinary stops, excepting the Tremolo and Expression, but have the Knee Swells, bass and treble, and a Grand Jeu for the heel, which enables the performer to increase and diminish the power without taking the hands off the keys. The simplicity of playing will therefore be easily understood.
